Stonhard Installs Flooring Solution at Pop-Up Hospital in New York

What do you do when the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, global architectural firm Perkins Eastman and general contracting giant Turner Construction approach you to find an immediate solution during a global crisis? If you're like Stonhard, you deliver one... with pride.

Stonhard associates live by these words: give us your worst problem, and we will solve it. As a testament to this core value, Stonhard was entrusted with providing a flooring solution for an emergency pop-up field hospital that was in the process of being constructed in five large tents on a New York suburban university campus.

Over Easter weekend, Stonhard's local sales and leadership teams, along with their installation partners across New York, immediately jumped into action. With collaboration and persistence from Stonhard's R&D, Tech Service and 70-person application team, the result was a successful installation of 120,000 square feet of seamless, hygienic, abrasion-resistant polyurea flooring, sealed with Stonhard's Stoneal PA7 polyaspartic coating. A plural-component spray applied system from fellow RPM company, Carboline, was also utilized in the project—demonstrating how intercompany connections create value for all.

"This is a testament to the resiliency of our company," said Greg Michael, Stonhard's president. "Stonhard came together to impact lives in the New York metropolitan community by allowing health care providers to serve more patients."

An extraordinary solution for extraordinary times, the project was completed in just 24 hours, so the pop-up emergency hospital could begin healing and helping as quickly as possible. By coming together as industry leaders, Stonhard and Carboline were able to collectively support the hard-hit New York metropolitan healthcare community amidst the COVID-19 pandemic.

"I cannot begin to describe how it felt to see how many Stonhard team members dedicated countless hours to help a community and deliver a floor to meet this critical deadline," said Anthony DiBenedetto, general manager for Stonhard's Northeast Region. "This project truly demonstrates the talented and resourceful people in our organization."

Kudos to the team at Stonhard for championing a tremendous humanitarian effort in such a short window of time. We're proud of all those who made it happen!

RPM's COVID-19 Priorities:

1. Protect the health and well-being of our associates and their family members
2. Support our local communities to control the spread of the virus
3. Serve our customers by maintaining the continuity and success of our business operations

Ohio Governor Cites RPM as Social Distancing Example

From frontline associates who are keeping RPM facilities in operation, to those working remotely to support critical supply chains, RPM's social distancing efforts around the world have had a tremendous impact in helping to protect fellow colleagues, customers and communities.

In fact, at a press conference earlier this month, Ohio Governor Mike DeWine pointed to RPM as an example of a company that is doing an exemplary job at maintaining social distancing protocols.

Euclid Americas Keeps Fighting the Good Fight Against COVID-19

As the COVID-19 pandemic continues to impact communities around the world, government mandates, technical guidance and regulatory information have been quickly evolving across RPM's many different geographies. In response, RPM businesses and their HR teams have been working diligently to stay in front of these developments and find new, innovative ways to communicate them to associates at a local level.

In an effort to mitigate the spread of COVID-19, Euclid Americas' HR team created a branded campaign, "Keep Fighting the Good Fight," featuring a superhero theme to recognize how associates across all of Euclid's businesses have banded together during this time of crisis—using their creativity, commitment and collaboration to enact measures that help protect their fellow colleagues, local communities and the organization as a whole.

As part of the campaign, Euclid Americas' HR team created a digital hub of COVID-19-related guidance and resources gathered from RPM, Construction Products Group, and global agencies like the World Health Organization (WHO) and the Centers for Disease Control & Prevention (CDC)—all housed on a company shared drive for easy, real-time access.

In addition, Euclid Americas developed a branded video that shares helpful tips and best practices for good hygiene, social distancing and other risk prevention measures. The video was made available to associates in three languages—English, Spanish and French—to accommodate the company's diverse geographies.
